

Stephen Heidari-Robinson

Vice Chair

Stephen Heidari-Robinson is co-founder and managing director of Quartz Associates and senior adviser for Covalis Capital. He served as former UK Prime Minister David Cameron's energy and environment adviser and was one of the architects of the UK's generation strategy and decarbonisation plan. He played a leading role in the nation's plans to address flooding, air pollution and is a strong advocate for electric vehicles as future powertrains in transport.

Heidari-Robinson spent nine years as a leader in McKinsey and Company's energy practice and was a vice president in Schlumberger, the world's leading oil field services and technology company. He has also worked in private equity, as the head of corporate sponsorship for a charity (Asia House), and as a civil servant.

Heidari-Robinson is co-author, with Suzanne Heywood, of a Harvard Business Review book on reorganising institutions ('Reorg'). His thoughts on decarbonisation and air quality have been featured in Business Green and on BBC Newsnight. Stephen studied history at Oxford, holds an MA in architectural history from the Courtauld Institute, London University, and studied Farsi at the School of Oriental and African Studies.
